Some people sit beside someone who no longer knows them.

There are places that continue with nothing coming back. Care that is the same thing done again tomorrow. A chair where someone waits for what may never arrive.

It does not end when the giver is gone. It stays as an object, a habit, a turn of phrase, and goes to the next person. Sometimes it skips a generation.

Book three. The last chapter closes on one question, and nothing is written after it.

GOES FIRST · NEVER ASKS · DOES NOT STOP BOOK THREE

The One Who Stayed

It goes on even when they do not know

NEVER BROKEN

set the three side by side and it is one line

STILL GOING
