LOOP CHRONICLES

BOOK FIVE

The Dry Valley

Nobody dies in the Preserve. They also never laugh again.

Seven years ago Anemos was outside fetching water when his mother and brother were preserved. He has come to wake them — and learns that undoing it is simple, permitted, and returns a person to a body that can die.

To get them back is to make them losable. Eikon was preserved at fifteen and is fifteen still. She lacks nothing, and her argument is harder to answer than grief.
